Stuart Brand
Point Foundation

Dear Stuart (or whomever this letter may eventually be routed to),

I heard you speak about money at San Jose State last Spring. In that meeting, my first introduction to Point Foundation, you outlined some of the qualities desirable in candidates for your support: need, a-little-goes-a-long-way, people-who-are-about-to-blast-off-but-need-a-financial-nudge, and acceptable general political allignment.

Also, you mentioned that you do not accept requests directly from people or organizations, but rather rely on go-betweens. I wish to be an unsolicited go-between for Alternative Sources of Energy (ASE) magazine and communications network.

I am enclosing a recent letter they sent to me explaining their financial situation and reviewing their purposes and philosophy. Their reluctance to move from a largely volunteer organization to some full-time staffing, for philosophical and financial reasons, may prevent them from being as great a service to their goals as they might.

As I am not sure what is your usual manner of researching potential candidates, I will have to let you go on your intuition and judgement rather than my praise-- I will simply follow with their address and my suggestion that you look in on them.

Thank you,

D. G. Bay
